Preface

This report presents data from the 2003–04 Commonwealth State/Territory Disability Agreement National Minimum Data Set (CSTDA NMDS). This is the first publication from the Australian Institute of Health and Welfare based on a full financial year of data from this collection – from 1 July 2003 to 30 June 2004. Reports from 1995–2002 dealt with ‘snapshot’ day data, while the 2002–03 report was restricted to using data from a 6 month period (January to June 2003). Overall data quality of the 2003–04 collection has improved compared with 2002–03, and is expected to continue to do so into the future.

In addition to the standard emphasis on service users and service outlets, this report contains a strong focus on data items relating to informal carers – these items were introduced when the collection was redeveloped during 1999–2002. Information relating to multiple service usage over the full year is also able to be presented for the first time.

The report contains an array of information related to service outlets operating under the CSTDA, and the people who accessed them over the financial year. It should be of great interest to a variety of stakeholders, including funded agencies, service users, government departments and the general public.

Richard Madden
Director

Acknowledgments

The authors of this report were Tim Beard, Cathy Hotstone and Phil Anderson. The report continues to build on previous reports from the Australian Institute of Health and Welfare, as well as developments in, and contributions from, all jurisdictions.

The successful completion of the CSTDA NMDS collection in 2003–04 owes much to:

- the service providers and service users who completed questionnaires and provided comments;
- all departments, organisations, peak bodies and individuals who provided suggestions or comments;
- the staff in the disability services funding departments who conducted the collection at the Australian government and state and territory levels.

Our thanks go to all these people.

Department of Health and Human Services (Tasmania)	Brodrick Smith
Department of Disability, Housing and Community Services (ACT)	Susan White
