10 Non-clinician medical practitioners

These are medical practitioners employed in medicine who are not involved in the diagnosis or treatment of individual patients. In 1995 there were 2,831 non-clinician practitioners—5.8% of all medical practitioners. Features of these practitioners included the following:

- 1,941 (68.6%) were male and 889 (31.4%) were female.
- 26.7% of non-clinicians worked as administrators; 16.8% as public health physicians; 10.5% as researchers; 8.6% as occupational health physicians; 6.3% as teachers; and the remaining 31.1% worked in other non-clinician occupations.
- The age distribution of non-clinicians differed between males and females. For males, 13.5% were younger than 35 years of age, 46.0% were aged 35–54 years, and 40.5% were aged 55 years and over. For females, the distribution was 27.4%, 53.1% and 19.5% respectively.
- Age distribution also differed across occupation. Teachers/educators were concentrated in the older age groups with only 7.9% aged less than 35 years and 43.8% aged 55 years and over; while for public health physicians, 32.8% were aged less than 35 years and 21.6% were aged 55 years and over.
- 22.8% of non-clinicians worked from private rooms, 65.5% from a publicly operated work setting and the remaining 11.7% from a privately operated work setting. Of those who worked in the public sector, 45.3% were employed in acute care hospitals, 26.1% in government departments, 15.0% in educational institutions, and the remaining 13.6% in other publicly operated health care facilities.
- 23.6% of non-clinicians working from private rooms were female, as were 34.8% of those working in a publicly operated work setting and 27.6% of those working in a privately operated work setting.
